

Dr. Harold Diamond, CFA, CMA

Dr. Diamond is a CFA charterholder and also a Certified Management Accountant [CMA]. He holds an MBA and Ph.D. in Quant and Economics from the Stern Business School of New York University. Before joining SHARP SEMINARS In New York, he had twenty-five years experience in corporate accounting and financial planning at AT&T and then Lucent Technologies. His particular specialities were working capital management and cash flow forecasting. He prepared several debt rating presentations that were important to both companies and received several merit awards from those companies. He joined SHARP SEMINARS In New York in 2001 and has been training and assisting students since then. He passed the CFA Level I exam in June 2002, passed the Level II exam in June 2003, and passed the Level III exam in June 2004. He has been teaching SHARP SEMINARS In New York CFA Level I classes for nine years. He has made use of his experience preparing executive presentations in training CFA candidates.

In May 2013, Dr. Diamond successfully completed a Coursera online course offered by Columbia University Department of Industrial Engineering & Operations Research entitled: Financial Engineering and Risk Management.